

LHO "Hermless"

In several of the FBI reports George deMohrenschildt is quoted as having said he had been told this by an FBI agent (CD554:24;555: 1, 75-80). The FBI interviewed him, apparently for the first time, in Haiti, and all they were interested in is this: had he said it, to whom, what FBI agents did he know, had he met, etc. It wound up with him saying he thought Max Clark and been and promising never again to acknowledge there was such a thing as the FBI. Which is one of the better ways to investigate a Presidential murder, when the President is dead and the FBI is not, and when the interviewee knew the accused (also safely dead) quite well.
